Apple tops Aramco as most valuable publicly listed company

Apple Inc.'s shares surged over 10 percent to a record high on Friday after reporting blockbuster quarterly results, helping the iPhone maker eclipse Saudi Aramco to become the world's most valuable publicly listed company.

Apple's stock ended the session at $425.04, putting its market capitalization at $1.82 trillion, according to the share count provided by Apple in a regulatory filing on Friday.

It was Apple's largest one-day percentage gain since March 13, and it added $172 billion in market capitalization during the session, greater than the entire stock market value of Oracle Corp.

Saudi Aramco, which had been the most valuable publicly listed company since going public last year, had a market capitalization of $1.780 trillion as of its last close, according to Refinitiv data.

After Apple bought back $16 billion worth of shares in the June quarter, it had 4,275,634,000 outstanding shares, as of July 17, according to the filing.

With Friday's stock gain, Apple has surged about 45 percent year to date, with investors betting that it and other major US technology companies will emerge from the coronavirus pandemic stronger than smaller rivals.

In its quarterly report, Apple announced a four-for-one stock split, with trading on a split-adjusted basis starting on Aug. 31. It will be Apple's first share split since 2014.

The Apple Inc. logo is seen hanging at the entrance to the Apple store on 5th Avenue in Manhattan, New York.

Huawei overtakes Samsung as top smartphone seller

LONDON (AP) — Huawei has overtaken Samsung to become the world's biggest smartphone seller, as its home market in China emerged from the coronavirus pandemic better off than other economies, according to a technology search firm.

Analysts at Canalys said Thursday that Huawei shipped 55.8 million devices in the second quarter of 2020.

While the figure was down five percent compared with a year ago, it was a smaller decline than rival Samsung, which saw smartphone sales slide 30 percent to 81.7 million.

Huawei still faces US government sanctions restricting its international business, but it has come to dominate its domestic Chinese market, said Canalys, which estimated that the company's shipments in China rose eight percent in the April-June period. Mainland China now accounts for 70 percent of Huawei's total smartphone sales, it said.

"It wasn't for COVID-19, it wouldn't have happened," senior analyst Ben Stanton said. "Huawei has taken full advantage of the Chinese economic recovery to reignite its smartphone business."

He noted that Samsung has a tiny market share in China, while the South Korean company's core markets, including the US, Europe, Brazil and India, have been ravaged by virus outbreaks and lockdowns.

Sanctions aimed at crippling Huawei are part of a broader global battle between the US and China over technology and trade.
